THE ALUMNI ALCOVE

THE attention of the Alumni is called to the Alumni Alcove in the Seminary Library. This Alcove was established some years ago and is intended to contain the publications of all those who have been students in Princeton Seminary, and thus be a visible and enduring monument of the large literary activity and influence of the sons of Princeton, who have done so much toward moulding and directing the Christian thought of this and other lands. It is believed that the Alumni will at once recognize the desirability of such a collection and the consequent desirability of making it as complete as possible. To this end they are earnestly requested to send to the Library their printed works, whether books, pamphlets or sermons. The receipt of these will be immediately and gratefully acknowledged, on behalf of the Library, by

ABSTRACT OF THE REPORT

The Report for the year ending March 31, 1930, contains notices of fifty-nine alumni and former students of the Seminary. Fifteen of these should have been in former Reports; but the fact of their death did not come to the attention of the Editor in time.

The oldest was the Rev. Prof. George L. Raymond, L.H.D., who died at the age of eighty-nine years and ten months. Ten others had passed their eightieth year and twenty-two their seventieth year. The youngest died at the age of twenty-two years and seven months. The average age of the fifty-nine was sixty-seven years and six months. The average confessional age, as far as obtained, was fifteen years.

The Report contains the following names :

GEORGE LANSING RAYMOND, L.H.D.,

Son of Benjamin Wright and Amelia (Porter) Raymond, was born September 3, 1839, in Chicago, Ill. He made a public confession of his faith in the Reformed church of Owasco Lake, N.Y., at the age of fifteen. His preparatory studies were pursued in the Springside Boarding School of Auburn, N.Y., and Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and he graduated from Williams College in 1862. He took the first year of his theological course, 1862-63, in the Auburn Theological Seminary. He entered the Seminary at Princeton in 1863 as a middler, graduating in 1865. He was licensed, April 5, 1864, by the Fourth Presbytery of New York (N.S.), and ordained, April 28, 1870, by the Third Presbytery of Philadelphia. He was stated supply of the Darby Borough Church of Philadelphia, Pa., from June 1869 until installed its pastor April 28, 1870, and was released from this charge April 14, 1874. He was professor of Oratory in Williams College, from 1874 to 1881; professor of Oratory and Aesthetic Criticism in Princeton University, from 1881 to 1893; professor of Aesthetics in Princeton University, from 1893 to 1905, and professor of Aesthetics in the George Washington University of Washington, D.C., from 1905 to 1912. After this he resided in California for five years and then in Washington, D.C. He died July 11, 1929, in Washington, of bronchial pneumonia in the 90th year of his age. He was buried in Princeton, N.J. He received the degree of L.H.D. from Rutgers University in 1883 and the degree of Litt.D. from Williams College in 1888. He published a large number of books. Among these were: "Orator's Manual," 1881; "A Life in Song," 1886; "Poetry as a Representative Art," 1886; "The Genesis of Art Form," 1893; "Art in Theory," 1894; "The Aztec God and

Other Dramas," 1900; "The Essentials of Aesthetics," 1907; "Fundamentals in Education, Art and Civics," 1911. He was a member of the Authors', Century, and National Arts Clubs of New York City and of the Cosmos Club of Washington, D.C.

He was married July 31, 1872, in Philadelphia, Pa., to Mary Elizabeth Blake, who died December 12, 1925. One daughter survives him.

WILLIAM WHITE KNOX, D.D.,

Son of John Pray and Aletta (Van Doren) Knox, was born December 14, 1842, in Utica, N.Y. He made a public confession of his faith in the First Presbyterian Church of Newtown, L.I., N.Y., at the age of fifteen. His preparatory studies were pursued in the Flushing Institute and in the Classical School of Freehold, N.J., and he graduated from Princeton University in 1862. He then spent a year in teaching in the school in Lawrenceville, N.J. Entering the Seminary at Princeton in 1863, he took the full three years' course there, graduating in 1866. He spent the following year in Union Theological Seminary of New York. He was licensed, May 3, 1866, by the Presbytery of Nassau and ordained, July 28, 1867, by the same Presbytery, being at the same time installed pastor of the church of Woodhaven, N.Y., and was released from this charge February 1, 1869. During this pastorate he supplied the First Church of Springfield, N.Y. He was pastor of the Second Church of Huntington, N.Y., from February 23, 1869, to December 1, 1881; pastor of the First Reformed Church of Bayonne, N.J., from December 1, 1881, to September 10, 1893, and pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, N.J., from September 17, 1893, to July 28, 1917. On resigning he was made pastor emeritus, and continued his residence in New Brunswick until his death there, May 3, 1929, of paralysis in the 87th year of his age. He was buried in the Greenwood Cemetery of Brooklyn. He received the degree of D.D. from Rutgers University in 1894. He was moderator of the Synod of New Jersey in 1910, and a trustee of Princeton Theological Seminary from 1899 until his death.
